Anthropology as a discipline dedicated to understanding 'other' has continuously developed through a critically reflexive discourse of its 'disciplinary self'. In an ever-changing world, the discipline has continuously reconfigured itself to an engaged understanding of self and the other to provide greater relevance to its theory, methodology and practice. Further the discipline has grown beyond its conventional boundaries to include the globalised multicultural reality. In light of this the present conference will touch upon the contemporary areas of research in general and the Indian context in particular.

Themes of the Conference

1. Climate Change, Disaster & Sustainability
2. Health, Diseases and Bio-politics
3. Food, Hunger and Agriculture
4. Fashion and Design Anthropology
